Living Learning Component:
The Language House is occupied each year by students who are studying a particular language and who are expected to speak it to one another while they are living there. The Language House creates an immersion experience for its residents. Every year the House represents one of the languages taught in the Division of Modern Languages. During the year, the students help promote cultural and linguistic activities sponsored by the Division of Modern Languages.

Location:
12 Park St.
The Language House is nestled on the south end of campus, across from the Saxon Inn and Wellness Center. Kanakadea creek runs swiftly behind the house, and there is an open lot to the left of the house for outdoor activities.
